

THE OASIS OF MY MIND

The glistening twinkle of your smile conjured the missing flutter in my life.
I thought I'd never find a heart
that'd throb with mine.
I feared I'd live my life alone;
no one to hold my hand in love
or paint a radiant sun on atrophied marble stone.
I though I'd never find a heart that'd throb with mine.
I was dazed and at a loss.
Loneliness and I, interweaved as emblazoned lace, consoled each other's hurt,
until I fell into your embrace.

You came when I had won every solitary game in town.
The trees, the breeze, the rugged seas shared my sense of pained unease.
Who would have thought your crimson lips
and mine
were meant to sing a song in rhyme?
I solemnise the moment
our lives became entwined, sharing the hopes, the dreams, the passions weaved in the oasis of my mind.
